

National Adult Education and Family Literacy Week
9/24/18 – 9/28/18

Did you Know?

Adult Literacy

- 36 million adults in need of raising basic reading and math skills
- 50-80% of adults may have a learning disability, explaining in part why they were not successful in public schools
- 85% of all people with learning disabilities have difficulty reading

Family Literacy

- A mother's reading skill is the greatest determinant of her children's future academic success, outweighing all else
- There is no substitute for the parent's/primary caregiver's role as a child's first teacher, best coach, and most concerned advocate
- Teaching parents reading strategies increases child's language and literacy outcomes
